Alejandro Manzanares

Alejandro Manzanares operates at the intersection of global markets, economic development, and geopolitics. At JPMorgan Chase, he drives business development for Global Passport, supporting international, innovation-led companies expanding into the United States. His experience includes work with the Aspen Institute and National League of Cities, engaging municipal and economic development leaders on entrepreneurship, investment, and growth.