Alexander W. Brockwehl

Alexander W. Brockwhel is director of policy and partnerships at the Leadership Now Project, an organization of business leaders committed to protecting democracy as a foundation for a thriving economy. He is also a visiting researcher at Brookings Institution, where he writes on Latin America and migration policy. Previously, Alex worked in various U.S. foreign policy roles, including as director for migration cooperation at the White House National Security Council and Staff Director of the House Foreign Affairs Western Hemisphere Subcommittee. Alex received an MPA from Princeton and a BA from Union College.