Kathryn E. David

Kathryn E. David is a historian at the Department of State's Office of the Historian. Prior to joining the Department of State, she was the Mellon Assistant Professor of Russian and East European Studies at Vanderbilt University. She received her PhD in history from New York University. Her writing has appeared in The Washington Post, The New Statesman, and The Conversation. From 2012-2013 she was a Fulbright scholar in Odesa, Ukraine.