Matthew Aks

Matt Aks is a Senior Strategist with Evercore ISI's Washington Research team, the top-ranked team in the category in the 2025 Extel (previously Institutional Investor) All-America Equity Research survey. Matt brings extensive economic policymaking experience across multiple administrations, having served as Senior Policy Advisor at the U.S. Treasury Department; Director for International Economics at the White House National Security Council; and Special Assistant to the Chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers. He is a recipient of multiple distinguished government service awards, including the U.S. Treasury Department's Salmon P. Chase Award, which he earned for his work on the Inflation Reduction Act. Outside of government, Matt's experience includes working as a management consultant with Oliver Wyman and as a fellow with the World Economic Forum. He holds a B.A. in economics from Brown University and an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School.